Abstract

The present invention relates to novel systems and methods for public and/or private electronic interaction between industries for purposes of transmitting selective information to targeted individuals or entities within such industries, such as, between homebuilders and real estate professionals to facilitate home purchase transactions.